THE PROFESSIONAL WORLD.

Per Year in Advance.

COLUMBIA AND JEFFERSON CITY, MISSOURI, FRIDAY DECEMBER 25. 1903.

VOL. III. NO. 8

PEACE WITHOUT SOCIAL EQUALITY.

n Letter on the Race Question by Wm T. Vernon A. M., D. D., President Western University.

DR. W. T. VERNON, D. D., President Western University, Quindaro, Kan.

whom death is sweet if by the same places of travel, quite often are negroes made to feel positive discomfort, being compelled to go hungry with money in their pockets when no one will sell to them.

class coaches and "Jim Crow" cars,

The negro who must thus escort

Again, the disfranchisement of that there seems in many sections,

not southern, a disposition to ac-

I am quite sure that in America/

we all are convinced that every citizen should have a "free ballot and a fair count," and any other system

is unjust, tyrannical and revolution-

I would not for once say that ir-rogue, they should apply to the

In such a country as ours, where the people are sovereigns, the ballot should be held sacred and is the means of protection for any constituency. Deprived of this the regnancy of justice is a hollow

mockery and free government a

Again, even where there remains the right to vote, we sometimes have ambitions to hold office.

For what can we expect or hope?

I fear not much in the way of

No man who does not feel as we only can feel, realizing how high

our ambition soars, and how low

must remain our estate, can appreciate the feeling of some negroes

who have predilections towards politics and statesmanship and yet

must forever eschew the same because of this condition. Personally,

it is my opinion that the negro's

of civic duty-to assist in the se-

But to day the greatest of all suf-

offices of public trust.

on than they are negroes, is a the participation in politics, as does

ment in support of which I can every patriotic citizen, as a matter for his family—the ones for outrage, have graduated into burn-

white man and negro alike.

quiesce in the same.

feel that such treatment is just.

our request for a letter setting they live in happiness and security. my views upon the race This I would call unjust treatment. tion is complied with without tancy since you are so broad liberal that I am confident that atever I may say will be considd for just what it is worth-no re, no less.

trust to be free from any bias at ordinarily would influence one directly concerned, and to disiss your propositions and answer ueries as one seeing from the andpoint of an American rather than as a negro pure and simple.

To begin with, I think there is quite too much discussion of the negro, both by the "yellow journals (white) and "yellow journals" (colored). Both have a tendency to focus too much attention upon him thus causing him in the every day affairs of life to be a marked

By this means the good selfespecting negro is coming to be the unexpected creature, unaccount- ary. ed for, and the bad negro to be the thing expected-the type considered worthy of restraint only as the wild beast or, at least, not as are other criminals restrained and punished.

You ask me, "Is the negro treated unjustly?" To this I submit hat we must first denominate what e consider to be just treatment.

I am sure that the average man puld consider fair treatment in the ain to be the right to work unammeled and unmolested, to have comfortable fare 'n places of travel and public, to have political liberty, the protection of law and the right of trial by jury of his peers when charged with crime or misdeneanor.

With such sentiments as are set orth by the Declaration of Indeendence and embodied in the Contitution of the United States as our national criterion, the above enumrated sentiments are necessarily

If any man or set of men are denied these, according to American standards, they are treated unjustly.

What the Negro May Complain of.

For me to say that the respect- earlier belief that politics constitutaye, the best negroes are often ed the sine qua non of his life's to suffer inconvenience and mission was baneful. His real conhip, to accept the most menial ception of true citizenship should be oyment at the most meager the securing of education and real s, when ambitious and compe- property, becoming a tax payer, the to do other work, for no other formation of noble character and uce abundant evidence. his I have seen time and again. curing of the purity and prosperity e have in many sections organ- of the state and the happiness of ons which refuse to accept the all the people. o as a member, and yet strike n he is employed to work with ferings of the negro's portion is , giving as a reason that he is the fact that in many localities he is member of such organization. almost without protection of law or his seems to me to be extreme- guarantee of life. To be simply ard when we consider that ne- accused of a crime now often means laborer's love for his wife and that his life is in jeopardy. Lynchdren is as but the love of any ings for that foulest of all crimes, ings and inhuman torture, and now the innocent negro is at times terrorized, driven from home and sometimes mobbed because of his brother negro's crime. Witness the Joplin mob, the Evansville and Danville mobs and many others.

Achievements of the Freedman.

He pays taxes on over $600,000,-000 worth of realty holdings, exclusive of church and school property all amassed by hard labor and not very remunerative wages, since his emancipation.

He has produced some statesmen, such as Douglass, Bruce, Elliott, and White; orators, such as Price, Bowen, Mason and Derrick; educators, such as Payne, Mitchell, and the apostle of industrialism, Booker T. Washington.

Negro boys have carried off honors at Cornell, Brown, Yale and Harvard.

Flora Batson, the song bird; Dubois, the scholar; Taylor, the musician; Ira Aldridge, the tragedian; Embry, the theologian, are As to the matter of comfort in ours.

Tanner has painted, Dunbar has tuned his lyre and, touched by the muse, broken forth in song that

These are the giants, the ones They are made to travel in second who have arisen to noble heights and contributed to the sum total of after paying the same fare as other America's great achievements.

There are still millions who despite ignorance and poverty, toil on, or send his female relatives from trust God and live honest lives and one locality to another will hardly in humble homes do the best they can or know.

There are negro women by the the negro is becoming so general thousands who toil over the washtub and the ironing board and still live true to home and love-whose every effort is for the weal and better life of their chidren.

There are hundreds of thousands of negro youth educated and refined who seek employment of the higher kind and, failing to secure the same, accept any honoruble toil, however menial, and cheerfully struggle and responsible men should vote simply hope for better things.

because they are of age, but I do believe that if property or educa- and drift into crime; but oftimes less enough to bring on the same is tional qualifications are to be in they have been educated along the to think him a mad man. In such and less veneer and sham, more aesthetic lines and are barred from all employment tending toward or be destroyed, but the courage disencouraging the same.

expect more of him than his few of our governmental fabric. years of freedom and untoward environment would warrant.

PROF. H. B. STONE Principal Sturgeon School-

have him learn the lessons of all races-particularly the great Anglo-Saxon race-to work at whatever his hands find to do, to save a portion of what he earns, however little, to rise from the lowly estate to a place of command. The negro of respectability must not condone the offenses or approve the idleness of the negro loafer and criminal, since we are all to be elevated in the eyes of the world only by an improvement of the criminal class as well as others. Being farthest behind in life's race, we must work more zealously to lift as

These ills upon the nation are but the result of slavery and must be for a time borne; and thus will toil and patience on the part of all true Americans make better the situation now calling for calm thought and pure motives everywhere.

Why There Will be no Race War.

To conceive of the civilized world standing by in this age while 10,-000,000 or human beings are fought. conquered and slaughtered by 705 the American people, and thus re-000,000 is a distorted mental picture not possible while conscience and reason live.

To feel that the American white man would force the same is to doubt his sanity and Christianity, I admit that many are in idleness and to feel that the negro is recka struggle the negro might finally played by both races in all Ameri-Idleness ensues, and this means can wars would, inspired by the desperation of such a conflict, lead highest standard and the demands We notice negro criminality to horrors worse than the French of God everywhere. more because we are beginning to Revolution, inviting the demolition

I am for peace. I want no war or strife. Some predict war. De-However, I would not thus ex- spite predictions to the contrary, cuse the negro loafer. I would this cannot be. No, unless God be gree of pessimism that doubts the final triumph of right and justice. The laws of the land provide for the same, the economy of Divine creation demands it.

A better era will come.

I have always found the best white men in sympathy with ne- here in peace and security? groes striving for the right.

The better elements in both races both races.

These sooner or later enlist the sympathies of the better classes.

The sanest thought of the age is charity, righteousness and the true Christianity, at the same time condemning without stint sin and help him to help himself as has violence, whether on the part of the been the case for generations. law breaker or the mob.

the same Christianity and love, take races will exist side by side peacethe same stand against criminals fully without social equality, but as and mobs, and foster morality and Americans, respecting each other education among his people.

brains, character and property are upon, dying for this country of ours today the greatest need. Let him -America, the asylum of the oppreach that, since we are on trial, pressed, the gift of the All-Father we must all the more struggle to to the down-trodden of earth.

have a negro criminal punished, ac- I am your humble servant. cording to law, as we are any of fute the charge that we uphold criminals and maintain a lower standard of morals than other races.

More Negro Farmers the Need.

The negro needs more farmers and fewer loafers, more money and less poverty, more true manhood doctors and fewer quacks, more competent school teachers and fewer wage-drawing school keepers. In short, he must approach man's

Then let the whites who would settle the question aright keep radical negro haters away from Chautauquas, where the best means of settling the race question are being discussed. Let them cease to give wide publicity to the sayings of unreasonable orators (who will not see any thing good in us), whose high official position enables them to add fuel to flames already consuming our national traditions and principles sacredly consecrated by the blood of patriots of both races since Knox was martyred at Bunker Hill or the negro, Attucks, fell on Boston Common. This will all bring about the only solution consistent with reason and our present civilization.

Lastly, I aver that the races are to continue to exist side by side as American citizens, emigration being impossible.

The Jamestown settlers came to America in 1607, the negroes in 1619, the Pilgrim Fathers in 1620. Side by side, though as master and slave, they have worked, suffered, fought and died. In peace the negro has been faithful and helped to tunnel mountains, dike seas, conbrawn and sweat a part of our country's fabric.

Not a Falterer in the Time of War.

Orleans in the War of 1812, and Olustee and Mines of St. Peters- tact.

dead and Christ a myth forever- burg, and many other sanguinary fields of the Civil war attest. And As to your next query, may I the Cuban soil, where sleep the say I believe it possible to effect a brave heroes of the Ninth and better understanding between the Tenth regulars; the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth (See President I cannot bring myself to that de- Roosevelt's tribute), is "hallowed" with the ashes of negro ex-slaves and their children, all saying to America that the strong black arm and brave heart of 10,000,000 of her citizens will be given gladly for her sake.

Why cannot such people remain

These plead, entreat us not to leave these hills and ivy mantled have no quarrel. Our serious race cliffs, made by nature towers and troubles are usually begun by the citadels to human liberty and freemore radical and oft-times vicious of dom. We cannot gather the drops of blood drawn from our bodies by sword and lash and carry them with us. We cannot gather the tears and groans of near three cenfor a better understanding. This turies and the bleached bones of our will come by the pursuance of the loved ones in cane brake and cotton proper course on the part of the patch, or on battle field, left there for all these years. These we Let the white minister preach would want with us as a memorial.

Peace Without Social Equality.

The best white men are going to

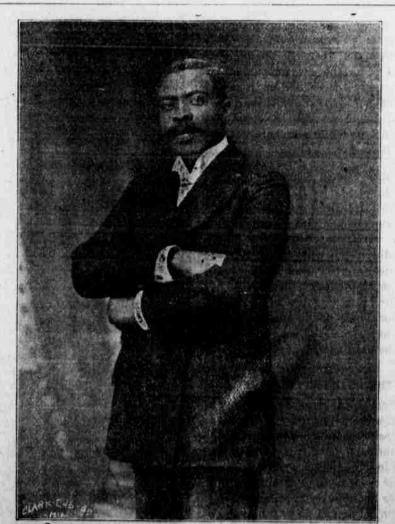

I am convinced that by the adop Let the negro minister preach tion of the right methods the two and working for, fighting for and, Let him teach the negro that as ever in the past when called

Trusting you will pardon this Let all the race be as quick to too lengthy letter, frankly written

PROF. J. SILONE YATES A. M. Professor of Pedagogy Lincoln

Prof. J. Silone Yates stands as one of the leading negro women in the United States. She was reared in historic New England and received her grammar education in the schools of New York and was the first woman of color to receieve a certificate entitling her to teach in the public schools of Newport, Rhode Island. She graduated from the Rogers High school of Newport. As valedictorian of her class, receiving the scholarship medal and was the only colored pupil in the class. Two years later she was graduated with honors, from the Rhode Island State Normal school with high honors. Since that time she has devoted her entire life to the work of educating and clevating her race. Besides her work in the school room, Mrs. Yates has done much in the organization known as the national association of colored women, She being its present president. For a period of eight years beginning in 1881, Mrs. Yates held the chair of struct railroads, delve in the mines, with perfect satisfaction to all connatural science in Lincoln Institute, cultivate the soil and make his cerned and was recalled there to take the chair of pedagogy in 1902. Mrs. Yates is a writer of national repute, having contributed articles to some of the best magazines in In war he has never faltered, as the country. Her connection with will the battles of Croton river Lincoln Institute adds much to the in the Revolutionary War, New strength of the faculty there as well as being a source of great inspiration for the many young ladies the brave blacks of Fort Wagner, with whom she comes in daily con-

DR. E. L. SCRUGGS, D. D. President Western College, Macon, Mo.